

BIO Of Miss Rhonda Rogers

Rhonda Rogers is a Chicago native who comes from a family of four. She is studying Construction Management at Eastern Illinois University (EIU). She knew, even as a child that she wanted to make a positive impact for those less fortunate. After witnessing the housing disparities between low-income and higher-income communities in the Chicagoland area. She sees that dream coming to fruition with her chosen field.

Rhonda believes hard work ethics and preparation will take you far in life. She is taking advantage of her education, experiences, and mentors to develop her professional and leadership skills. At EIU, she currently serves as the Construction Management (CM) Undergraduate Assistant and Student Ambassador. She is Vice President of the EIU Construction Club, and a recipient of the 2019 CM IAB Meritorious Service Award. She has worked in the Construction Department at EIU for over a year. As an active member of the community, she strives to improve learning experiences for herself as well as her peers. After graduation, Rhonda plans to establish herself within the Chicago Construction Industry with a long-term goal to better the housing conditions in Class C neighborhoods.
